Family Resource Network is excited to announce that it has been awarded a $45,000 grant from the Lucile Packard Foundation for Children's Health. Only three new applicants from throughout the state received funds for the Foundation’s California Community Care Coordination Collaborative (5Cs). FRN was part of a San Joaquin coalition that worked for several months to craft the grant request.

The goal of the 5Cs is to improve local systems of care coordination for children with special health care needs and their families. The San Joaquin project is focusing on children birth to 5 years. While the focus is on services for children age birth to 5, the collaborative feels confident that older children will benefit as well. The grant committee has identified several areas where we believe systemic changes can be made that will improve services to children and families.

FRN will serve as the Project Director for the grant. The San Joaquin Coalition includes representatives from First 5, which will serve as the fiscal agent, along with Valley Mountain Regional Center, California Children’s Services, special education, behavioral health, local hospitals and local health plans. There are also parent representatives on the coalition.

In addition to local monthly meetings representatives from the San Joaquin 5Cs will take part in the statewide California Community Care Coordination Collaborative (5Cs). The 5Cs provides a structured opportunity for the coalitions to learn from one another, identify areas of shared need, discuss emerging challenges and connect with others engaged in improving the quality of services for children with special health care needs in California.

The grant period is from January 1st, 2015 to June 30th, 2016. To learn more about the projects around the state visit: http://lpfch-cshcn.org/our-work/california-community-care-coordination-collaborative/

Attention All PRRS Families

Effective January 1, 2015 the eligibility criteria for California’s Early Start program has been broadened. The new criteria means that your child, who is currently served through Family Resource Network’s Prevention Resource and Referral Services, might now be eligible for Early Start services. In order to receive Early Start services your child will need to be assessed by staff from Valley Mountain Regional Center (VMRC).

You should have received in the mail a letter from FRN detailing how the Early Start referral process works. If you have concerns about your child’s development and would like your child to be assessed by VMRC for possible Early Start eligibility please contact FRN staff and we will take your information and submit the referral to VMRC. You can contact FRN via phone (209-472-3674 or 800-847-3030), fax (209-472-3673), email (FRNfamilies@aol.com) or by coming into FRN’s office (office hours: Tuesday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., 5250 Claremont Ave., Suite 148, Stockton, CA 95207). It will take about 10 minutes to gather the information we will need from you in order to make a referral to VMRC.

There is no requirement for you to have your child assessed by VMRC. It is totally parent choice. If at any time before your child’s third birthday you have concerns about your child’s development and would like your child assessed by VMRC for possible Early Start services just contact FRN staff and we can take your information and submit the referral to the Regional Center.

While your child is in PRRS your family will continue to receive information from Family Resource Network until you tell us otherwise. You will continue to receive FRN’s newsletter and periodic phone calls from FRN staff.

If you have any questions about PRRS, the Early Start program or any other way that FRN can be of service to you please contact FRN staff.

Meeting the Communication Needs of Students with Hearing, Vision, or Speech Disabilities

What do Federal laws require of a public school to meet the communication needs of students with hearing, vision, or speech disabilities?

- Under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), schools must provide a student with a disability a free appropriate public education (FAPE) designed to provide meaningful educational benefit through an Individualized Education Program (IEP).
- Under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, schools must, without charge, ensure that communication with students with disabilities is as effective as communication with students without disabilities, giving primary consideration to students and parents in determining which auxiliary aids and services are necessary to provide such effective communication.

Will the aids and services required be the same under both Federal laws?

- It depends on the individual needs of the particular student.
- Sometimes the special education and related services provided to a student as part of FAPE under the IDEA will also meet the Title II requirements. In other instances, in order to meet the Title II requirements, a school might have to provide a student with aids or services that are not required by FAPE.
- Some services related to communication, like teaching a child to read Braille or understand sign language, are not required by Title II’s effective communication requirement but may be required by FAPE.

Does the school have to give a student the aid or service the parents request?

- Under Title II, the school must provide the aid or service requested unless the school can prove that a different auxiliary aid or service is as effective in meeting the student’s communication needs (in which case the school must provide that alternative), or the school can prove that the aid or service would result in a fundamental alteration or in undue financial and administrative burdens (in which case the school must take other steps to ensure that the student can participate).
- Schools are not required to provide aids or services greater than what is needed to ensure effective communication, or to comply with requests about details of the aid or service (such as particular brands or models) that are not relevant to its effectiveness.

What types of aids or services could be required for students?

- There are no categorical rules. A school must assess the needs of each individual.
- For a student who is deaf, deaf-blind, or hard of hearing, some examples are: exchange of written materials, interpreters, note takers, real-time computer-aided transcription services (for example, CART), assistive listening systems, accessible electronic and information technology, and open and closed captioning.
- For a student who is blind, deaf-blind, or has low vision, some examples are: qualified readers, taped texts, audio recordings, Braille materials and refreshable Braille displays, accessible e-book readers, screen reader software, magnification software, optical readers, secondary auditory programs (SAP), and large print materials.
- For a student with a speech disability, some examples are: a word or letter board, writing materials, spelling to communicate, a qualified sign language interpreter, a portable device that writes and/or produces speech, and telecommunications services.

Where can I get more information about the rights of students with hearing, vision, or speech disabilities?

- The U.S. Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights (OCR) and Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, along with the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), have issued a Dear Colleague Letter and a Frequently Asked Questions document explaining what federal law requires of schools to meet the communication needs of students with hearing, vision, or speech disabilities.

What can a parent do if the school won’t give a child what the parent thinks is needed?

- Arrange to meet with the IEP or 504 team or the school’s Title II or 504 Coordinator.
- Consider using the school district’s published disability grievance procedures.
- Under the IDEA, a parent challenging the provision of FAPE may request mediation, may file a complaint with the State educational agency, or may request an impartial administrative hearing by filing a due process complaint.
- Under Title II, a parent may choose to file a lawsuit in court. Parents of an IDEA-eligible student generally must exhaust the administrative hearing procedures of the IDEA, which means obtaining a final decision under the IDEA’s impartial due process hearing procedures, before filing a lawsuit seeking a remedy that is also available under the IDEA.
- OCR and DOJ both investigate complaints of disability discrimination at schools.

To learn how to file a complaint with OCR, call 800-421-3481 (TDD: 800-877-8339), email ocr@ed.gov, or go to www.ed.gov/ocr/complaintintro.html.

To learn how to file a complaint with DOJ, call 800-514-0301 (TTY: 800-514-0383), email ADA.complaint@usdoj.gov, or go to www.ada.gov/fact_on_complaint.htm.
